

Spooky Swirly Eyes: Draw, Talk & Discover

Draw, write, talk, act it out, or pass. A grown-up can read with you.

Rafa's curious clues

Rafa notices little details. Look around your room or outside with a grown-up. Find three things that make you curious. Draw one and ask: "I wonder...?"

What might they feel?

Zag wonders how the little zebra feels. Draw a face showing a feeling. What could Zag ask to find out? You can say: "How are you feeling?"

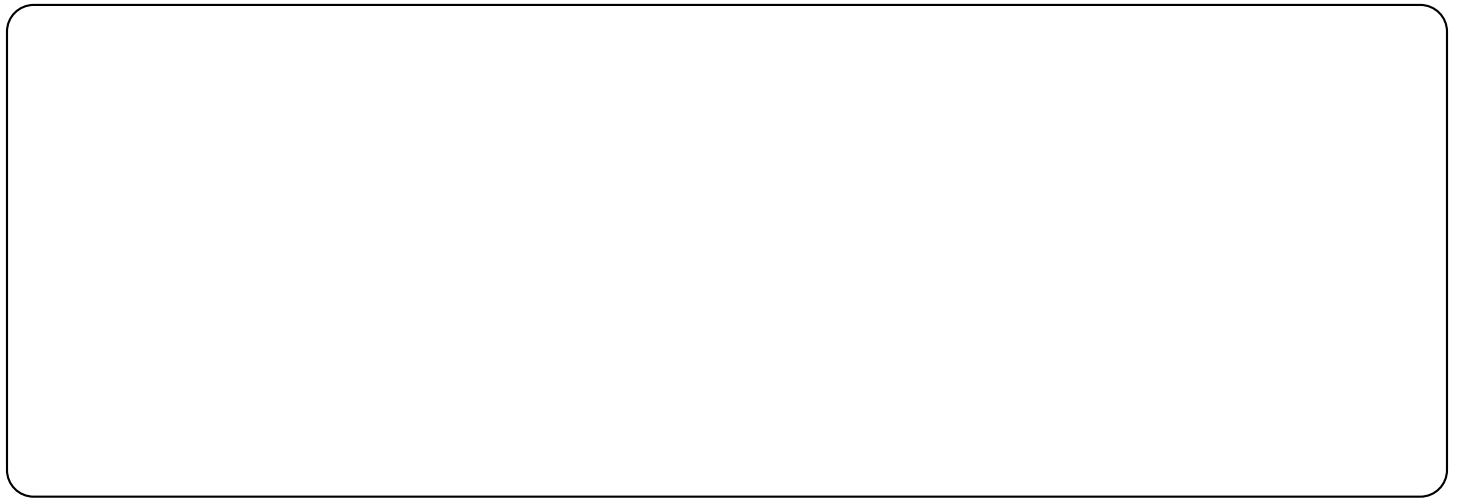

Spooky Swirly Eyes: Draw, Talk & Discover

Draw, write, talk, act it out, or pass. A grown-up can read with you.

A friendly first question

Zag asks about Halloween. Draw someone you would like to get to know. Think of a friendly question you could ask, and leave room for their answer.

Listen, then switch

With a friend or grown-up, take turns making a sound or a movement. The other person notices and copies it in their own way. Then switch. Draw your favorite part, or tell what you noticed.

Spooky Swirly Eyes: Draw, Talk & Discover

Draw, write, talk, act it out, or pass. A grown-up can read with you.

Words that make room

The zebras shout, “I am right! You are wrong!” What could they say to learn about each other instead? Draw or write a kinder conversation. You could start: “Tell me what you think.”

Our strengths together

Rafa brings curiosity. Zag brings empathy. Draw yourself with a friend. What does each of you bring? Tell, draw, or write one way your strengths help you have an adventure together.

